Eastside student Kylar Childress wins national contest

runner up

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR

Cynthiana has a national finalist. She's not starring on American Idol or The Voice. She's not pirouetting across the stage in So You Think You Can Dance. However, bubbly 8-year-old Kylar Childress is no less a star. After all, she got to design her own pair of Converse sneakers. In late October and early November, Stephanie Whitson's first and second grade Eastside Elementary class began a study on Pete the Cat, a children's book series created by illustrator James Dean and written by Eric Litwin.

As part of the series, students were given a coloring page to design shoes for Pete the Cat. The coloring sheet served as Kylar's entry into a Scholastic Book Clubs Draw My Shoes contest. "It took me two days," said Kylar of her runner-up entry. Out of 28,000 entries, Kylar was one of 12 finalists. The grand prize winner earned a visit from the author, a Pete the Cat book collection, and a pair of sneakers that the winner designed. See DESIGN, page 3

Nearly $200 in fake bills seized by police

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR
Cynthiana Police are asking for help identifying suspects believed to be involved with a major counterfeiting operation in Harrison County. It was reported last week that funny money was showing up all over town. A security photograph has been released of a young woman, believed to be in her late teens, and a male, possibly in his early 20s. The couple allegedly passed $120 in $20s at Walmart. Cynthiana Police Cpl. Walter Tapp said there may be more money out there and cautioned everyone receiving change in any denomination to have the cashier marker check it before leaving the counter. So far, fake money has been turned in to police from Walmart, Kentucky Bank, a hair salon and Save-a-Lot grocery. See FAKE, page 3

Deployed soldier's dogs found

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER
A major sigh of relief is in order after a soldier's dogs have been returned to the caretaker. On the morning of Feb. 11, Capt. Adam Evans of the 149 Vertical Construction Company boarded a bus to begin a long haul that would ultimately lead to Afghanistan. While away, assistant animal control officer Paul Colson was given the duty to watch over two of Capt. Evan's labs, a mother and pup. Later that same day, Colson discovered himself in a panic when he found that the two animals had escaped their confinement at his farm on Shaw Lane. "I was sick to my stomach when I went back to take care of them for the night," recalled Colson. "I searched almost the entire night trying to find those two labs." The next day Colson contacted the Cynthiana Democrat to help spread the word that the soldier's two labs had gone missing the same day he was deployed and to contact him with any information as to where they might be. On Feb. 14, the day the story ran in the Democrat, See DOGS, page 3

Assistant superintendent retiring April 30

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR

April 30 will be a bittersweet day for Assistant Superintendent Dee Gee Fischer. After 35 years in education, the last 12 as assistant superintendent, Fischer will be stepping down. "I truly believe that Harrison County does have the best and brightest when it comes to its staff," Fischer said Tuesday morning. "They are all here for the students. I'm so proud to have been a part of something so great." Fischer started her teaching career in Scott County. She was there for seven years before she came back to her hometown. She said after her daughters, Sarah and Anna, were born, she wanted to get back home.

Her first position was teaching itinerate reading at Northside and Southside elementaries. From there she moved to the middle school where she taught gifted and talented English and remedial reading. Then Superintendent Dr. Martin encouraged her to get into more district-wide programs. Her first stop there was with the migrant program.

Dee Gee Fischer

About the same time, Kentucky's Education Reform Act was blossoming and Fischer was assigned to help write grants with others in the district. Harrison County was able to start its health, Family Resource programs and regional migrant opportunities as a result of the grants. Those programs needed an overseer, which was Fischer. In 2001, she was named assistant superintendent. She has worked with five superintendents, Dr. Carr; Dr. Wade Roby, Dr. George Paul Hehr, Dr. Roy Woodward and Andy Dotson.

"One of the first things she said to me when I came here was the best part of the job is the people that you work with," said Superintendent Dotson. "She is the perfect example of that. I've been able to witness her compassion and love for the kids here." Dotson said Fischer was more of a mentor to him when he first came to Harrison County as a first-time superintendent. Fischer said she has also worked with numerous boards of education, with each bringing his or her own area of expertise to the table. Fischer said she has no immediate plans for retirement other than to spend more time with her family.

Dogs

Colson was contacted by a woman living in a subdivision in the Shadynook area. "Apparently her two daughters had been outside playing with the two dogs," said Colson. "They thought that the animals lived nearby, but once they read the article they knew who the owner was." Colson went later that day to retrieve the dogs, who were unharmed. "That really bothered me," said Colson. "I'm really glad that I have them back safe." Colson said he plans on keeping an even more strict eye on the two escapees while under his care. "They are really good dogs," said Colson. "When the weather gets nicer outside I hope to have some volunteers come and help walk them. It is a service to a soldier and I'm sure that someone out there will be willing to help."

Relay fundraiser at Cynthiana McDonald's only

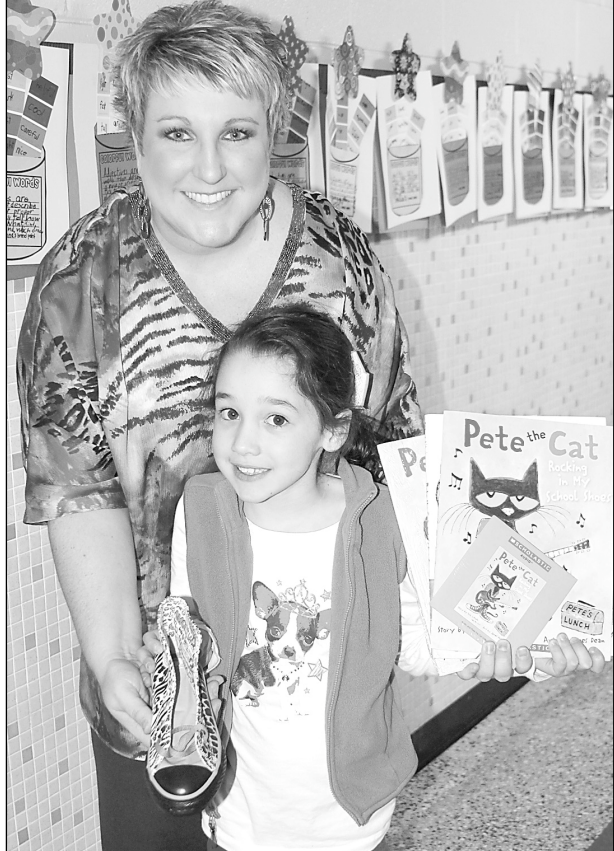

Cynthiana's McDonald's will be participating in a fund-raising effort to benefit the local Relay for Life. On Thursday, Feb. 28, 50 cents from each value meal and sale sold at the Cynthiana location between 5-7 p.m. will be donated to the Relay for Life, which is an all-night event geared at raising money for the American Cancer Society. A press release from the Relay for Life, which appeared in last week's Cynthiana Democrat, incorrectly identified 13 other McDonald's taking part in the event. Only the Cynthiana McDonald's, which is owned by the Healey family, is participating.

City says yes to grant app for fishing dock

By BECKY BARNES, Editor
The Cynthiana City Commission agreed to sponsor a grant application that would allow for the construction of a fishing dock on recreation property at River Road. The Land and Water Conservation grant would provide $11,500 with the city having to come up with $5,750 for the project. The dock would be handicapped accessible. "I think it's a worthy project," said Commissioner Billy Grayson. "My concern is where the money would come from." Mayor Steve Moses said he thought there would be local matching contributions to offset the costs.

So... how's business?

How's business?

That's a question I often get asked.

Now, whether they are asking just as greeting or truly want to know how the newspaper business is going is anyone's guess.

My response is generally that it's all good.

In light of reports of newspapers having to reduce staff and even close in some instances, and all media for that matter, makes the "How's business?" question much more relevant these days.

It's been a tough economy all over.

Many people have found themselves or a spouse without jobs.

All over the country we have seen businesses closing and empty store fronts... not just newspapers and not just in Cynthiana.

Your Cynthiana Democrat is still a popular read. That's not just me boasting without supporting statistics.

I love to hear from subscribers who are in the office at renewal time and comment that they have subscribed for 40 years or since they "started house-keeping."

There are also those faithfuls who say they can't wait for the mail to run on Thursdays so they can have their paper. They are also usually the ones who say they read it "cover to cover and back again."

And, as much as I like to hear those comments, that's still not actual numbers. However, those numbers are there.

Becky Barnes
Editor

Each year the Audit Bureau of Circulations releases county-by-county numbers of subscription-based periodicals.

We've already established that the economy has been rocky so I won't try to dance around the fact that newspapering hasn't been unaffected.

We have.

The local economy cannot take the hit it did and everyone go unscathed.

While the economy is certainly a factor, it's not the only factor. More and more people are searching online for their news. Fortunately, some of those are also Cynthiana Democrat subscribers.

Our circulation is not what it used to be, but I can certainly say proudly that we are still the most subscribed to newspaper or magazine that comes into the county.

Out of 7,400 households in Harrison County, we go into 52.1 percent.

The Lexington Herald-Leader is the only daily that has a measurable presence in the county. It goes in to 11.7 percent of Harrison County's households. That goes up for the Sunday edition to 15.5 percent.

What this says to me is that local people want local news.

And for those businesses wanting to reach Harrison County patrons, your advertising dollars are better spent on your local advertising.

Obviously I'm a little biased, but our local, awarding-winning newspaper has much to offer its readers.

I'm grateful for every subscriber and advertiser.

A tribute to John McKee Swinford

To the editor:

Cynthiana and Harrison County lost its biggest booster and promoter with the death of John Swinford on Feb. 3. Before John's health failed his knowledge of most of the citizenry of Cynthiana and Harrison County was second to none. John was extremely proud of Harrison County and all of its good citizens. He was also proud to be a lawyer and was an extremely honorable member of that profession. I am not nearly a good enough wordsmith to write this accolade, but I must try.

As many of you know John loved his family, politics (especially the Democratic Party), Cynthiana and Harrison County, football, and practicing law. John conducted himself and his life as a true Christian should and was a shining example to many. He was a true gentleman who treated everyone with the greatest respect. He represented the wealthiest and most powerful people and the poorest and most disabled with equal vigor. All of these folks called him their lawyer and best friend. His legal knowledge and expertise were legendary.

John knew the genealogy of almost every family in Harrison County as well as many families in the surrounding area. In most cases, John not only knew your mother and father, he knew your parents and grandparents as well; he knew what farm or house they owned and probably the names of the previous owners. If a lawyer or paralegal got stuck researching a title, they only had to ask John and he would immediately help. When the flood of 1997 occurred, and the Harrison County Clerk's Office lost their records folks learned that the law firm of Swinford & Sims had many of those records intact. After all, that firm had been in business at the same location for over 100 years.

John always came to work with a smile on his face, a twinkle in his eye, and seemed so happy to be there. It was a joke in the office that if you planned to eat lunch with John, he would always be 30 minutes late getting there. Although the restaurant was less than a block away, if any of the office staff left the office with him, he would have to shake every hand and converse with every person he met who had a legal problem, thus he was always tardy. He never seemed to lose his cool or his genuine concern for others and he was always loyal to his friends and supporters.

I always wondered how parents could raise such a wonderful man and only son and after reading the book about his father and mother, Federal Judge Swinford and Benton Peterson Swinford, titled "Call Me Mac" I partly understood. John and Mary have raised their boys Jim and Bill in the same way and they are equally unselfish and as concerned for others as their parents.

Although I left Swinford & Sims over 14 years ago, and established my own law office, John never held any animosity toward me and was always gracious if had a legal question or concern and at times, even sent me clients. As a lady said to me when we were standing in line at John's wake, "When I first met John some 30 years ago I wondered if he was genuine, and I thought to myself, he only wants my vote. However, after I knew him better I realized his friendship was real and he was a true friend."

May God Bless the Swinford Family.

$110 million upgrade to Commonwealth Stadium

FRANKFORT — Although the Kentucky House of Representatives considers a wide variety of bills during any given week of a legislative session, there are times when broad themes emerge. We had three last week, and they affected our universities, our farmers and our legal system.

For our universities, the highlight came on Thursday, when Governor Beshear signed the session's first bill into law. It gives many of our four-year public universities the ability to spend $363 million of their own money to build 11 projects, which are expected to support about 5,000 construction jobs. This will not use any new state tax dollars or cause tuition to rise.

Most of the money will be used by the University of Kentucky, which will now spend $110 million to upgrade Commonwealth Stadium and $100 million for a new science building. Two-thirds of the cost for that building will come from the school's athletics department, the first time in Kentucky that athletics revenue has supported academics.

Tom McKee

On Tuesday, I was proud to take part in a Capitol Rotunda ceremony that unveiled a new five-year plan for agriculture. It notes both the successes farming has seen in recent years and the challenges the profession faces down the road. A copy can be found online at www.kyagcouncil.org.

On the positive side, sales last year approached a record $5 billion, and there were 10 different commodities that brought in at least $100 million, including poultry, tobacco, corn, hay and hogs. The "Kentucky Proud" program has also been a phenomenal success as well.

Some of the challenges we're seeing include declining tobacco settlement payments — half of which the General Assembly began dedicating to agriculture in 2000 — and the end next year of direct payments from the tobacco-buyout program.

In the years ahead, the General Assembly will be working to implement some of the plan's proposals.

Thoserangefrombringing in more young adults into farming; exploring new or expanded markets; and educating the public about all that agriculture provides, both for the table and economically as well.

With that in mind, I was proud to sponsor a resolution that the House adopted on Wednesday recognizing Feb. 17-23 as Food Checkout Week. We are fortunate because no other country spends a smaller percentage of its income on food than we do in the United States.

Waterworks/Abdallah Road

To the editor:

I wholeheartedly support Mayor Moses in his effort to implement the repair of Waterworks/Abdallah Road. This road has been closed since last summer. Local motorists used this road as a safe and handy way to access Walmart and the post office, thus avoiding heavily traveled U.S. 27.

As for the by-pass, I don't know of many local people that will travel it regularly.

I urge motorists to let Mayor Moses know that they support him in seeing repair of the roadway as soon as possible.

Ed Herrington
Cynthiana, Ky.

McKee

Another piece of farm-related legislation that I sponsored also cleared the House last week and now heads to the Senate. House Bill 141 would establish a new income tax credit that farmers could use if they donate products to charitable food banks. It would give them another incentive to donate surplus or unmarketable food they may have.

The third main theme from last week centered on the state's legal system. The bills we passed would do such things as:

- Extend domestic violence orders to victims in dating situations. Most states already offer this, but in Kentucky, DVOs are limited to those who are married to or live with their abuser or share a child with that person.
- Give voters the opportunity to automatically restore voting rights to most felons after they have served their full sentence. Kentucky is one of only several states not to do this. If this bill passes and voters approve this constitutional amendment next year, it would not apply to those convicted of murder, sexual crimes, bribery in an election or treason.

- Take DNA samples from those arrested on a felony charge. These samples would go into criminal databases and make it easier to prove innocence or guilt and to crack unsolved cases. About half of the states have similar laws on the books.

This week, the House is expected to vote on legislation dealing with school safety, our public pensions and possibly redistricting. The House Agriculture and Small Business Committee, which I chair, is scheduled to have a hearing on industrial hemp on Wednesday this week, meanwhile.

It promises to be a busy time, which is why it is more important than ever that I hear from you on the issues of the day. You can always write to me at Room 332B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601. My email address is Tom.McKee@lrc.ky.gov.

You can also leave a message for me or for any legislator at 800-372-7181. For those with a hearing impairment, the number is 800-896-0305. More information can be found on the General Assembly's website: www.lrc.ky.gov.

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

Community Employment Opportunity continues to work with disabled citizens to find work during hard times.

The late Francis Quinn Morris laid the foundation for Community Employment Opportunities in 1977 when she developed an organization for those persons with mental disabilities.

"My sister, Lorrie, had been diagnosed with down syndrome," said Jeannette Quinn Bracken, daughter of Francis. "My mother started thinking about what Lorrie was going to do after high school."

According to Bracken, her mother campaigned hard with citizens in the community for support and funds in order to provide a service for those who were deemed "disabled."

The operation, which was held inside the old jail on Pike Street, taught those with physical and mental disabilities how to perform basic home skills as well as various crafts for pleasure.

However, in 1997, under new federal and state mandates, the organization underwent revamping, resulting in the present day Community Employment Opportunities.

"Our agency, which is non-profit, allows us to help place individuals in our community into safe working environments," said director Jason Back. "Currently we have 44 individuals in jobs where they are earning a paycheck."

According to Back, individuals who qualify for assistance from Community Employment Opportunities undergo a period where their skill set is determined in order to be placed in an appropriate job setting.

"Everyone has skills," said Back. "It is our goal to find those skills, develop them and help them find a place that is safe for them to work."

Back said over 150 people in Harrison County have been placed into jobs since the mission began.

"It is a chance for them to find self worth and a feeling of being needed in a job setting," said Back. "It is a way to help them live a more meaningful life."

However, due to a decline in the economy, businesses are in less demand for employees, resulting in fewer partners for Community Employment Opportunities.

"We are in need of partners to provide part-time or full-time jobs for our men and women," explained Bracken. "We understand that we are in hard times, but these people are willing to work and I know there is a place for each and every one of them."

Back explained that the amount of work performed by the placed individuals varies from each person.

"Some of the workers have barriers as to how much they want to work or where and that is where we help," said Back. "We are here as the middle man to solve any issues between employer and employee should they surface."

Back explained that employers are not approached by Community Employment Opportunities until the individual has been assessed and all needs will be met for both the employer and employee.

Back further explained that Community Employment Opportunities also plays a role in the training of individuals for specific job-related duties.

"We don't just drop them off at work and let the employer deal with it all on their own," said Back. "The employers are doing us and the individual a great service and we do anything we can to ensure satisfaction on both parts."

Of the many individuals that have participated in the Community Employment Opportunities, Bracken said each one shows a true testament to an improvement to someone's life.

"The employers don't see sometimes the excitement when they receive their first paycheck," said Bracken. "It is a real treat to see someone work hard and feel the rewards of their hard work."

For more information about Community Employment Opportunities or to find out ways to help, contact them at 859-234-9377.

Community Employment Opportunities is not in affiliation with Community Action, however they are located in the same building on Old Lair Road.

Magistrates give nod to new Parks & Rec leaders

By BEN HYATT, News Writer

The Harrison County Fiscal Court voted to hire Brad Steele and Jim Milum as the new Parks and Recreation director and deputy director respectively.

After several applications were reviewed, Parks and Recreation committee members Missy Lutz and Frank Henson presented Steele and Milum for the positions created by the restructuring of the recreational department to the fiscal court.

"It's nothing personal against them," said magistrate Bradley Copes. "I just don't support the new program."

Copes was the only "no" vote, with all others voting yes. Magistrate Paula Taylor was absent.

Steele's salary has been set at $40,000 and Milum's at $35,000. They will both assume all responsibilities effective March 1.

Also discussed during the meeting were recommendations made by the Kentucky Road Department for roads needing resurfacing in Harrison County.

The state suggested that the $692,000 for the road surfacing program be used to pave 3.2 miles of Petty Road, 3 miles of Republican Pike and 2.7 miles of White Oak Pike.

The projects to be done on Republican and White Oak will be in conjunction with last year's resurfacing of the heavily traveled roads.

The court agreed to accept the recommendations of the state, while holding back the flex funds for other county road projects.

During the county attorney's report, seven bids were read for the use of the county farm.

The winning bid was awarded to Jeff and David Barnes for $306 per acre.

Finally, the fiscal court was presented a $7,500 check by the Harrison County Soil Conservation for dead animal removal.

The money was awarded to the soil conservation through a grant.

Pictured above is magistrate Missy Lutz with new Parks and Recreation personnel Brad Steele, director, Jim Milum, deputy director and magistrate Frank Henson. Steele and Milum were hired as the new Parks and Recreation personnel during the Feb. 26 Harrison County Fiscal Court meeting. Their first day of official work will be March 1.

A BPAP machine is a breathing apparatus that helps its user get more air into his or her lungs.

Last September, the HMH Auxiliary Board decided to donate the proceeds from the Breast Cancer Awareness items sold in the gift shop to the Harrison County Cancer Coalition. The $200 donated will be used by the Harrison County Cancer Coalition to provide cancer awareness education and gas cards for individuals who are actively receiving cancer treatment.

In the upcoming months, the HMH Auxiliary will hold several fundraising events, including:

ANTIOCH/ROBINSON HOMEMAKERS

The Antioch/Robinson Homemakers have been busy. The group collected $25 for the food pantry.

Medicine bottles are being collected for foreign countries for the medicine distributions.

Club members are also collecting money for a scholarship for 4-H Camp.

Members are always volunteering for the fair, Recipes for Reading Program, the blood drive, and contributing to Coins for Change. The unit always gives to the Ovarian Cancer Drive with their membership dues drive.

In December members held a Christmas party at Biancke's. Dinner guest was Judy Morris, club president. Everyone enjoyed themselves with food and a gag gift exchange. Violet Barnes got the best gift, a hill-billy back scratcher.

The homemakers meet every third Tuesday of the month at 6 p.m. for fun and informing information.

If you are one of those who complains about weeds like it's the end of the world then take note: The most common, cool-season annual and perennial weeds will be germinating any day now.

The obvious: They are easy to control if you just bend over and pull them up; or walk around the garden with a cultivator in hand, scratching up a patch here and there; or spot treat them with boiling water, in order to scald the foliage and roots; or use a conventional herbicide to easily knock them out while they are still young and tender.

The point is they are easier to control if you clean them up now.

Chickweed is usually found in moist, shady spots.

It is almost rubbery in texture when you pull it. Be especially careful if chickweed has already flowered and gone to seed because when you touch it the seed releases like popcorn.

Control chickweed during active growth by pulling or using a herbicide.

In problem spots, follow up with a pre-emergent in the fall to prevent seed germination once cool weather returns.

Seeds germinate from late fall to early spring so another application of a pre-emergent in the early spring is a good idea if you struggle with chickweed.

Wild violets can quickly become a hard-to-manage perennial problem despite their sweet heart-shaped foliage and the pansy-like flowers.

The sinister thing about violets is that they almost spontaneously fling their seed far and wide while sending their roots in all directions.

The dense, fibrous roots are steadfast and break away from the plant if you try to pull them by hand.

Instead use a trowel (after a good rain) to lift them out of cultivated areas. If you can't dig them as soon as you see them, pinch off the flowers so they won't go to seed.

In the lawn, violets often become widespread.

They do not respond to most broadleaf weed controls that are safe to use

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.
SwallowRailFarm.com

on turf grasses.

The product Confront is recommended for controlling violets and it proves quite effective.

Carefully spot treat your lawn where violets are present.

Violets are a cool season perennial so they are most actively growing in the spring and fall, therefore treatments will be most effective at these times.

Like the violet, you want to dig wild onion and wild garlic up as soon as you see them.

Both are hard to control because they spread by seed and by bulbs underground.

There are some chemical controls that claim to kill wild onion and garlic, but the problem is that liquid controls do not stick and are not absorbed well by the waxy foliage.

Dig deep to remove them from cultivated areas.

In the lawn, persistent spot treatment for several years will be necessary as the bulbs sprout at different times as they mature.

Ground ivy, or creeping Charlie, is a perennial that reproduces by seed and underground stems.

These stems, and the areas that ground ivy grows, are what makes this weed hard to control.

Total kill herbicides and broadleaf controls are usually out of the question because the ivy grows among desirable plants.

Pulling the weed is tricky because the stem anchors itself along the ground with roots. These will re-grow if any are left behind.

I have successfully reduced a problem area where ground ivy was taking over by carefully pulling up the stems after rainfalls.

Just be persistent with careful hand pulling, especially in the spring and fall because it is a cool season perennial and most actively grows at this time.

Most broadleaf weed controls are effective on red and white clover, which is good news because I have not found a better way of getting rid of this perennial weed.

Clover proves tenacious and reproduces by seed and roots (which are deep and break off easily, making pulling and digging tricky).

Treatments are most effective in early spring and fall when plants are young and more actively growing.

Expect to retreat problem areas.

Clover seed can last up to 20 years in the soil; so don't let this one reseed if you can avoid it.

But my real advice, as you would suspect, is to not worry about it at all.

Weeds are only problematic because we somehow deemed them so; I now see every forage and blade of grass as food for my chickens and sheep and as such the last thing I would want is a chemical combatant in the picture.

Mid-March is the time to start using pre-emergent herbicides formulated for lawns and flowerbeds.

As an alternative, look for corn gluten-based products so you can avoid synthetic chemicals in your environment; and maybe some meditation on the usefulness of all species.

RIDING HIGH

Lessons available for all ages and experience levels

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER

Horseback riding lessons are now available for all ages and skill levels.

Karen Linker, formerly of North Carolina, has been studying the art of horseback riding for over 24 years.

Linker's in-depth style of teaching provides a near 100 percent guarantee of success to anyone interested in learning the art riding horses, just ask her daughters.

"Almost anyone can jump on a horse and ride them around," said Linker. "I try and teach the mechanics behind riding to ensure safety for the rider as well as getting the most out of your time while in the saddle."

In the past 24 years, Linker has studied the various types of riding from simple trail riding to competitive riding such as dressage, also known as horse ballet, reining and jumping.

However, a foundation of intense learning off the horse must first be achieved before types of horseback riding can be explored.

"We teach more than just how to jump on a horse and trying to steer it in the right direction," explained Linker. "There actually is quite a bit of science behind it."

Linker said a great deal of attention is spent on the proper balance that must be achieved while in the saddle.

Linker said that anyone willing to give a good effort toward leaning how to ride will succeed.

"I take students who have never been on a horse or those who have been riding for years," said Linker. "Age does not matter to me. Anyone can learn to ride correctly."

Linker said she also takes on clients who have had bad experiences with horses or even those who may suffer from lack of confidence.

"Riding makes you confident," explained Linker. "Being able to allow the horse to do what it naturally does while being in control is a way to build your confidence not only in riding but in everyday life as well."

Linker, with the help of her daughters Valerie, Brooke and Brianna, are currently accepting new students.

"I have around 10 students right now but I can take up to 20," explained Linker.

Brianna Linker doing some jumping exercises aboard "Abby," a horse used at Cygnet Farms on KY 36. Brianna is the daughter of Karen Linker who gives riding lessons at the farm.

"Classes have a maximum of three students at a time so we can monitor the students to ensure the best safety possible."

Linker said lessons start at $25 per hour and take place at her property on KY 36W behind Side Saddle Inn.

For more information about riding lessons or what it takes to become a competitor in the world of horseback riding, contact Linker at 859-402-7934 or email her at cygnetfra@gmail.com.

Former governor in Cynthiana for Lincoln Day Dinner March 9

By BEN HYATT, NEWS WRITER

Former Gov. Ernie Fletcher will make an appearance at the March 9 Lincoln Day Dinner in Cynthiana to discuss national and state issues.

According to Avi Bear, co-coordinator of the Lincoln Day Dinner, Fletcher has not made many public appearances since his rein as Kentucky Governor.

"He has always been held in high respects in Harrison County when it came to voting time," said Bear. "We are honored to have him come and join with us during a time when everyone can discuss the national and state level issues that effect all."

During a phone interview on Monday, Fletcher confirmed that the purpose for his stop in Cynthiana is not politically tied, but more of a visit.

"Harrison County has always been very good to me," said Fletcher. "So I decided to make a visit and discuss issues that concern us all."

Fletcher said he plans to discuss issues such as national debt, health care reform, the current direction of the nation and some state level issues as well.

"These issues effect everyone and they deserve our attention to detail," said Fletcher. When asked if political plans were in Fletcher's future, he declined to give an exact answer.

"Never say 'no' to anything in the future," said Fletcher. "At this time though I have no ambitions on running for any office."

The dinner, which will take place at the Harrison County Extension Office, will be held March 9. Social hour begins at 6 p.m., followed by a catered dinner at 7 p.m.

There is a $25 meal ticket charge. Those wishing to attend should RSVP by March 2 by calling Roger Brill at 859-234-8342, Jim Pinson at 859-234-5567, or Avi Bear at 859-234-4393.

"I hope this will be a time where all political parties can join together to enjoy the ability to discuss what is important for us now and for our future," said Bear.

HOOKING AN HEIRLOOM

RITA GLASCOCK

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

It's been years since Rita Glascock discovered an unfinished hooked rug that her mother started.

"I promised myself I'd finish it in memory of her," said the woman who spent her entire working career in health care.

The now delicate rug, made so by the aging linen and wool, remains unfinished with just a few bare sports around the edges. And while that rug project is bundled into a bag and stashed in Glascock's project room, there are countless other rugs and wall hangings that attest to her hooking skills.

Glascock is a walking contradiction. She'll quickly tell you her opinion, if you ask, but she's not likely to seek out her 15 minutes of fame. She would rather see others in the lime-light while she quietly works her hooking needle in and out, over and under.

When Pat Grenier, Chamber director, asked Rita to display some of her works as Artist of the Month in November, she rounded up her favorites and took them in for display at the Chamber building.

November turned in to December and her hangings were still on display in the building that shares space with The Vault, a favorite lunch spot in downtown Cynthiana.

It was here that 80-year-old Dudley Dumaine recognized Rita's talent, got her contact information and made the call.

He wanted a rug. Not one that she had already completed. But, a specific rug.

It had to have nine elements, a bear, a deer, a moose, salmon and trout, a cow, an oak tree, representations of his adopted parents and particularly the state of Maine.

Dumaine brought photographs of the man and woman he proudly says he adopted along with his request for the rug.

He planned to give the rug to his adoptive parents' son, who still lives in Maine.

Dumaine, who lives between Cynthiana and Paris, gave Rita free reign on the rug's design.

The elements were all something that she would have to freehand.

However, the prospect of designing her own rug was exciting.

As she was putting the finishing touches on Dumaine's commissioned rug, he contacted her again asking for a second rug. Similar to the first.

Rita claims she will be able to make improvements to the second rug.

"It's difficult to make a three-dimensional picture," Rita said.

She wants to improve on her deer to get the shading just right.

She also wants to get a brighter orange for the jacket worn by Dumaine's father.

And, then there's the moose antlers that Rita admits she ripped out more than once.

Rita is always in search of wool that she can use in her hooking projects.

Her project room contains stacks of old wool jackets that she can cut into strips for hooking.

She said that was one of the things that entices her to create heirloom rugs.

"You can look as see where you used your mother's blazer or your father's pants; it truly is an heirloom," she said.

Rita keeps a journal that details each project as she's working on it, from the cost of the wool and how much she used to how many hours she worked.

It took her about three months to complete Dumaine's first project. She was anxious to get it finished, and now she's equally excited to see how she can improve on what she has created.

STUDENTS OF THE MONTH. The Harrison County High School Students of the Month for February are: from left, Zach Day, freshman, son of Todd and Karri Day; and Jordan Riddell, senior, daughter of Noel Riddell and Heather Ladick. Sponsor for February is Dr. James Clyde.

Reaching for the ‘Silver Screen’

Jess Tinchier doesn’t just want his name in lights. He wants to be the person who helps others have their names in lights. His eye is focused on a career to do just that.

Tinchier, a 2011 Nicholas County High School graduate, is currently working on his Associate of Arts at the MCTC-Licking Valley Campus.

With this two-year degree, he will be able to transfer his earned credits to Eastern Kentucky University to achieve a degree in Film and Drama.

“I want to pursue my dream of being a film director. It’s something I’ve always had a passion for,” Tinchier said.

Right now though, Tinchier is starting small and working toward one goal at a time to ensure his future success.

He came to the Licking Valley Campus because of the small classes, it is a local school and it will save him money to earn his basic requirements at the community college level.

In addition to his academic schedule, Tinchier is also working on expanding his artistic career. He is secretary of Literati, a group that supports and encourages literary and visual artistic endeavors.

Tinchier has even won a third place award for poetry in the annual campus writers’ contest.

Through it all – the classes, the commute to Cynthiana from Carlisle, his leadership position on campus – Tinchier realizes that reaching for the silver screen will require more than just a minimal effort.

“It’s one thing to have a dream. It’s another to pursue it,” Tinchier said. “Nothing is worth having if you don’t have to work for it.”

HCHS Speech team participants were Jackson Sanders, Sarah Nichols, Anna Nichols, Josh Godman, Logan Willis, Erin Bradford, Lauren Shepard, Michaela Bowen, Wylie Caudill, Alycia Schaum, Kinsey King, Amber Schools, Amberlyn Schjoll, Jacob Sanders, Ross Smith, Marie Bowen and Jared Thomas.

VanHook, Honaker recognized for outstanding popcorn sales

Sam VanHook and Cory Honaker, both of Cynthiana, received awards from the Bluegrass Council of the Boy Scouts of America on Feb. 18, for outstanding popcorn sales in the 2012 fundraising season. Both boys are members of Cub Scout Pack 50, in Carlisle. VanHook received a trophy and $150 for being the top popcorn salesman in the Council with $10,388 in total sales. He also placed first in the state and third in the nation, according to the popcorn company, Campmasters. Honaker received a trophy for placing second in the Council and 15th in the nation with $6,663 in sales. Sam's parents, Danny and Tammy VanHook, and Cory's parents, C.D. and Sherry Honaker, were on-hand for the award presentations. In addition to grand prize awards, each Pack member who sold popcorn qualified for various prizes from the Pack and Council. Proceeds from popcorn sales are divided between the Bluegrass Council, the local pack and the individual Scout, who may use the money toward entrance fees, Scouting merchandise and equipment. VanHook and Honaker would like to thank the community for all its support throughout the popcorn fundraiser.

Ebenezer UMC commemorates Black History Month and shares dreams

Students, instructors, pastors and community members assembled at Ebenezer United Methodist Church on Wednesday, Feb. 13, to commemorate Black History Month and to share their dreams.

JEFF JACKSON

Ebenezer UMC Pastor, Rev. Kenneth Newby, opened the service and the men's choir presented musical selections. Licking Valley Campus Instructor Donna C. Slone-Crumble gave a reading, LVC student Mike Jones presented a creative interpretation in dance, and several other students shared their dreams. One student dreamed that there would one day be a cure for cancer. One student dreamed of a community soup kitchen. Another student dreamed of more opportunities for community youth. Yet another student dreamed of an end to abandoned animals on our city streets through an effective spay/neuter program. "What I picked up on was the diversity: different age groups and different ethnic backgrounds coming together to worship in one service. I closed with a prayer and had everyone stand up and hold hands. And I thought about what our dreams were and what Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. stood for. "He had a dream that we would all live in peace. He dreamed of what was going on that night at Ebenezer church," said Jeff Jackson, pastor of Elmarch United Methodist Church in Cynthiana, and the speaker for the evening. "Even our diversity was something that we had in common." Jackson, who received a portion of his schooling at Licking Valley Campus as a non-traditional student, said that everyone has dreams and that every dream is important. He also stressed that dreams can change. Jackson shared his personal story with the crowd. He had a dream when he was young of being an architect, but took a different path right after high school. Because of those choices, his architectural dream crumbled. But Jackson said that God wasn't finished with him yet. Piece by piece, brick by brick, Jackson started to turn his life around, and one of the most important choices he said he made was to begin with a new foundation of learning. He enrolled in classes in 2010 and said the opportunity to re-build helped to save his life. Through his tenure on campus, Jackson gained knowledge in class, but he also gained leadership knowledge when he founded the Christian student group Alpha and Omega, and leadership through the student ambassador program. Now, he said, he has a continual thirst for knowledge and understands that education is the mortar that will help him hold the pieces of his life together for a higher calling that will serve God. And even though he is not building structures made of bricks and steel, he is nonetheless following his childhood dream. "I'm kind of an architect because I get to help God build his kingdom," Jackson said. Part of his message was to the entire community that they, too, can follow their dreams and build their futures no matter who they are, what color their skin is or where they have been. "If we are all created equal, then we all have that same opportunity to get what we want and to get that education and move forward and set a goal for ourselves and do it," Jackson said. "People want to be successful. When the students talk about what their dreams are, they also need to realize that they can be successful. If you get knocked down, that is part of the process. It is in reach."

Breds rout Bluejackets for 38th District title

Landon Palmer takes a shot Friday as the Breds worked up a 30-point lead in the District 38 championship game against Nicholas County.

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

“We played hard, scrapped and got the loose balls,” beamed Coach Larry Kendall. “Our defense was the key to the game and we held them to 42 points.”

This was the first-year coach’s assessment of his Harrison County Thorobreds’ 72-42 district championship game defeat of the Nicholas County Bluejackets Friday night.

Both teams advance to the 10th Region Tournament, which opened Monday night in Maysville.

Nicholas County (10-20) will play the second game Monday when they face the favored Montgomery County Indians (28-4). Harrison County (19-12) will play the last game Tuesday night against George Rogers Clark (9-20), a team they defeated on Jan. 8, 58-47.

The winner of the Thorobreds versus Cardinals affair will play the winner of Augusta (21-10) and Scott High (14-14), which will tip off at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The district championship game started with the usual hard-nosed Nicholas County squad taking the lead early before the Thorobreds caught them at six points each.

Harrison County then pulled away steadily as they dominated the glass for 10 rebounds to three for the smaller Nicholas County squad.

Harrison County took the lead by the end of the first quarter, 17-8.

Balanced scoring was the strength of the Breds for the first half as the Thorobreds had eight players in the scoring column.

They also continued the rebounding domination and by the end of the first 16 minutes the score was more than doubled at 39-17.

Twelve of the first-half points came from the bench as Coach Kendall used nine players in the half.

At halftime, Harrison County was shooting a red hot 50 percent from the field while Nicholas County was a cool 30 percent on seven-for-23 shooting.

Unselfish play continued to be the theme for the Thorobreds in the second half as they worked for the open shot and out-scored the Bluejackets by 10 more points to lead by 59 to 27 going into the final period.

Kendall substituted liberally in the final period getting all 15 dressed players into the game.

Six-foot-9 junior Landon Palmer led the Breds in scoring in the final period with five points and Harrison County eased away with the 30-point victory.

Sophomore Trenton Thompson was the leading scorer for the balanced Thorobreds’ attack with 12 points.

Dillon Pulliam added 10 with seniors Tyler Wagner and Scott Kendall adding nine points each.

The starters did not play in the fourth period, which led to 12 Harrison County players in the scoring column.

Nicholas County was led by junior Scott Keaton who had eight points and 17 rebounds.

The all-tournament team for the 38th District Championship consisted of Tyler Burns of Robertson County, Ethan Moore of Pendleton County, Scott Keaton and Jacob Fryman of Nicholas County and Trenton Thompson, Tyler Wagner and Dillon Pulliam of Harrison County. Pulliam was named the tournament MVP.

Senior Jordan Martin takes his turn cutting down the net last Friday after the Thorobreds basketball team won its first district title since 2009, beating Nicholas County 72-42.

Fillies youthful but potent as season begins in 3 weeks

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Harrison County Fillies enter the 2013 softball season with some key holes to fill from graduation of their pitcher, first baseman and center fielder from last year’s 38th District Champion.

Tracey Hicks, who pitched since she was an eighth grader, Lucinda Boyers the first sacker and Emalee Little, the center fielder, have all graduated and must be replaced for this season.

Coach Christine Garnett and her staff have a young yet experienced group who they hope and believe will be able to fill the void.

“We have some good, young girls and some veterans to provide leadership,” noted Garnett. “We just need to mold them into a unit that can work together.”

Returning is the leading home run hitter in the area last year, Ashley Coppage.

Coppage will split her time at third base and first while terrorizing the opposition pitchers with her ability to hit both the long ball and for average.

Senior catcher Morgan Florence returns to add a steady hand behind the plate.

Florence is also a consistent hitter who knows how to get on base. Florence may also spend some time at shortstop depending on the development of some of the younger players both in the field and behind the plate.

The third senior returning is Jasmeen Smith who began last year as a key designated runner but was injured early in the year.

Smith should also see some time in the outfield during her senior campaign.

Freshman Jamie Davis will return for the Fillies to serve as the main pitcher for the season.

Davis pitched several innings last year and will be counted on to carry the load for the Fillies this season.

Three other freshmen have some varsity experience and will be counted on to step into major roles early in the season.

Sydney Motell and Morgan Grose each played some outfield last year and will see action in the outfield during 2013, and Shelby Ishmael has some outfield experience but could also play some on the infield.

Others counted on to contribute in major ways before the season is over are juniors Cathy Chasteen and Katelyn Hollar, ninth graders Anna Marsh, Macy Martin and Courtney Newsome, eighth grader Taylor Reffett, and sixth graders Bailey Conley and Jima Hill.

The district will be tougher this year with defending region champ Nicholas County returning all but their pitcher from last year and Pendleton County beginning with a new coach and a new outlook for the game.

The schedule is tough as the Fillies strive to improve on last year’s 23-12-1 record.

“We have a tough schedule with the trip to Owensboro in May and the trips to Clarksville, Tenn., and Corbin in April,” admitted Garnett. “We also have the McDonald’s Tournament here and a home game with powerhouse Ryle on our schedule. We are looking forward to the challenge.”

Region competition also dots the Fillies schedule as they face Bourbon County, who ousted the Fillies from the regional last year, Montgomery County, who is always a contender, and Bishop Brossart who figures to rebound after a slow season last year.

Garnett and her staff of Glenn Lonaker, Roger Coppage, Tony Conley and James Paul Switzer figure to have the young and talented squad ready for the challenge.

The regular season opens at home with Grant County on March 19 for a JV/varsity doubleheader.

The preseason scrimmage will bring in Lafayette for a Saturday, March 9, contest that begins at noon.

Doram selected to the All 10th Region first team, Stephens to Hall of Fame

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Harrison County junior center Jordan Doram has been named to the first team All 10th Region squad as voted on by the 10th Region’s basketball coaches.

The 6-foot junior, who averaged a double double in scoring and rebounding for the season, joins Macie Spence and Erica Rogers of 40th District Champion Montgomery County, Sandra Skinner of 40th District runner up George Rogers Clark and Sarah Futscher of 37th District runner up Bishop Brossart.

The second team has Taylor Robinson and Kaytlin Siegmundt of 37th District Champ Campbell County along with Alivia Bierley of 39th District Champ Mason County, Alexis Tye of Paris and Asia Simms of Bourbon County.

Doram was the only representative from the 38th District in the three teams named as McKayla Likens of St. Patrick, Bailey Cummins of Bracken County, Jerica Kelsch of Augusta, McKenzie Butler of Mason County and Abby Stadtmiller of Bishop Brossart made up the third team.

Nicholas County’s Megan Bretz and Reesa Martin were named honorable mention along with Bradi Boden and Heather Jolley of Pendleton County.

Former Harrison County star Donna Stephens was named by the veteran committee to the 10th Region Hall of Fame in the 2013 class.

Stephens, who played at Harrison County from 1975 through 1978, starred in the Kentucky-Indiana All Star games and played for both Morehead State and the University of Missouri in her college career.

She is now employed by the NCAA in Indianapolis.

Other players named by the veteran committee were Shawna Toy of Bath County, Deanna Darrell of Nicholas County and Drucie Connors of Fleming County.

The ceremony will be held at the Maysville Conference Center on March 24 at 2 p.m.

MIKE'S MINUTE

I hope Recreation change not made in haste

I read in the Democrat last week the names of the new staff hired by the new board to run the Cynthiana/Harrison County Recreation Department.

You know me, I would never want to become political nor jump to a conclusion so I will wait and see how it goes and I wish the new people the best success because if they are successful the better for the citizens young and old.

But let me say a couple of things about recreation and how we have progressed to this point.

First, Rick Chasteen is my friend, but that has zero to do with this column or what I will write because being my friend does not mean that I will agree with you unless, of course, you are actually agreeing with me.

With that point stated, we have come a long way in recreation in Harrison County in the last four years.

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

I, too, remember the good old days of the park being full of softball teams in the summer and the 13-15 year olds playing in Pony League as I umpired the softball and coached the Pony League.

Brad Muntz still calls me "Coach" from my days of coaching him and others playing for the Union Bank of Berry team.

The Pony League days are gone with the success of our high school team.

In this time, for a high school team to be successful the players must play together and play tough competition during the summer to be prepared for the rigors of the high school season.

To think that a 13-15-year-old youngster would have time to play both Pony League or Babe Ruth and still travel and play is just not right.

Softball, I hear, is not what it was in the older, adult tournaments.

It is a booming success in youth softball and maybe that is where we can go but that doesn't solve the problem of adult recreation.

One of the criticisms that I have heard is that all of our recreation is geared toward the ages of 5 through 12 years old.

Archery is a possibility as maybe would be adult volleyball and I hope that they are given a shot.

By the way, the decision not to let the lady play in the church basketball league was a mistake.

But that is another issue for maybe another time.

Back to the recreation decision and where we have come from to now.

I recall when Little League, Minor League and Pee Wee were played on the Hilltop on Shirley Field and the field above the high school field.

I was on the recreation board when the land for River Road Park was bought and the fields constructed and believe that was a good move.

It was certainly an improvement from where the games were being played and with the current situation of use a necessity.

There is the problem with flooding, but considering what we had and the opportunities that there were then it was a good choice.

Rick Chasteen did an excellent job of keeping the fields in working order and made a yeoman's effort to keep the place clean of trash and debris.

That being said, let me give some advice to the new staff, Mr. Steele and Mr. Milam.

Just putting a trash can in front of some of our populace will not guarantee that they will use it nor will putting up a no smoking sign or no pets sign or do not ride your bicycle here sign mean they will be obeyed.

In Harrison County those signs are not for my dog "he is little and cute" or not for my smoking because "this county was funded by tobacco money" or for my child's bike because I never tell him no and you are not going to either.

Chasteen made many people upset by trying to equally enforce the rules which the recreation board established and you will too if you enforce them.

Good Luck and I really mean that.

Like I said, if you are successful the better for each and every one of us.

STATE CHAMPION.

Tyler Hudgins won the state championship in the 79 lb. weight class at the Kentucky Youth State Wrestling Tournament held at the Alltech Arena at the Kentucky Horse Park on Sunday, Feb. 17. He is a two-time state champ and a one-time runner up in his three years of wrestling for the Breds.

Former Harrison County Softball Fillies playing major roles in college

The Harrison County Fillies softball team of 2011 had several promising athletes who were thought to be college "material" when they finished as regional runners up for the season. Two of the young ladies are still playing for their respective colleges and making an impact for the teams.

Juniors Michelle Carson and Kaitlyn Shepherd each have started every game for Northern Kentucky University (Carson) and The University of the Cumberland (Shepherd).

Carson is the Lady Norse' third baseman and their third leading hitter through the first nine games. Northern Kentucky University moved to Division I this season playing in the Atlantic Sun Conference in all sports which has made for a much more challenging schedule.

The Lady Norse are 3-6 including Sunday's 2-1 win over Niagara University. Carson is batting .296 with one home run, two doubles and two RBI in the first nine games.

Shepherd's University of the Cumberland's Patriots are currently 1-5 though they have lost half of the games by one run. Shepherd, who plays in the outfield, is batting .267 with a double and one RBI having started each of the six games.

The Patriots play in the Mid South Conference and are in the NAIA. Shepherd began her college career at Wilmington College in Ohio but transferred last year to Williamsburg and the University of the Cumberland. She is a sophomore in eligibility but a junior in the classroom.

Chamber continues with big plans for 2013

The Cynthiana-Harrison County Chamber of Commerce held its monthly board meeting on Feb. 13, making big plans for its membership and the community.

The board approved a request to schedule the annual community awards banquet on March 19. This is a change from its scheduled date of Feb. 22, but was made so that more of the community could attend and see the deserving recipients honored. Business, volunteer, citizen, farmer, health care provider, public safety and teacher of the year are just a few of the awards to be presented on March 19. Tickets for this annual banquet will be available for sale at Biancke's Restaurant for $25. The banquet will be held at Cynthiana Christian Church and catered by Layne Tussey.

The Chamber board approved the recommendation to sponsor a summer concert series in downtown Cynthiana.

The Chamber will partner with WCYN and weekly sponsors to provide free concerts every Friday evening throughout the summer.

This will increase traffic in downtown Cynthiana to benefit the business community and provide a great evening of entertainment for families in Harrison County.

The Chamber is currently looking for weekly sponsors and bands to make this summer concert series a reality. Bands and potential sponsors are encouraged to contact Pat Grenier at 234-5236.

In other business, the board of directors elected Pam Slone as president-elect. Slone will serve as Chamber board president from January 2014 to December 2014.

She is a 23-year employee of Kentucky Bank where she serves as market president. She is also active in the community as a Lions Club member. Slone was elected to the Chamber board of directors in 2013.

The annual membership drive is currently underway. Businesses are encouraged to join the Chamber of Commerce early in the year.

This year, the Chamber will publish a membership directory of business members and is working on a new website.

To ensure businesses are listed in these two guides, dues must be paid by the March membership luncheon, which will be held on March 27 at Biancke's Restaurant.

The first 5K race of the year will be held in April. Runners and walkers are encouraged to make plans now to run in the 2nd Annual Earth Day Run on April 20.

The Earth Day run will be the first race of the three-race Triple Crown 5K series.

Young Farmers banquet planned

The Harrison County Young Farmers is planning their local banquet on March 25, 2013 at the Harrison County Extension Office. Meal will begin at 7 p.m. with guest speaker Warren Beeler with the Ky Dept. of Agriculture to follow.

Need humility? Apply here

This semester, New York Times columnist David Brooks is teaching a course at Yale called "Humility."

As part of the required reading: passages from the Bible, works from St. Augustine and German theologian Reinhold Niebuhr — and columns by course professor David Brooks himself.

Brooks is teaching a course on humility using his own columns.

To be fair, Brooks has good-naturedly accepted all the jabs he has received for daring to offer a course on the subject of humility — and using his own works as part of the curriculum. He told the online World magazine site that the columns of his that he's using for the class are not his own thoughts, but compilations of life lessons sent to him by readers.

Also, Brooks said, the course is less about "Humility and How I Achieved It" than it is about character.

He told World magazine that he felt the need for such a course because today's college students are "hard working and nice, but they are inarticulate about character."

In his course description (that can be found on the Yale Website), Brooks writes: "Everyone says character is important to leadership but few people know how to build it. This course will survey one character-building tradition, one that emphasizes modesty and humility."

"The strategies covered here start from a similar premise — that human beings are blessed with many talents but are also burdened by sinfulness, ignorance and weakness. Character emerges from the internal struggles against one's own limitations."

As part of the class requirements, Brooks spells out that cheating and plagiarism are not allowed. He adds, "If you do not understand or are uncertain about what constitutes cheating or plagiarism, please ask."

Seriously, what college student doesn't know what constitutes cheating?

The day after the World magazine story about the Yale humility course came out, World posted a story about a new study that suggests "most college freshmen think they're better than their peers, and better than they really are."

According to the annual American College Survey, psychologist Jean Twenge found that "college freshmen are more likely to be self-centered and possess unearned self-confidence than at any time in the last four decades."

Twenge said it's a result of three decades of the Self-Esteem Movement telling kids how wonderful they are in an effort to combat issues like teen pregnancy, suicide and violence. However, instead of the rate of these issues going down, it has increased.

If you doubt that, just watch an episode of the

"My Super Sweet 16" reality documentaries on MTV, which document the mega-thousands spent on sweet 16 birthday parties and the excess that these teens expect and demand.

Twenge calls it a narcissism epidemic. We are raising a world full of egomaniacs, a generation of people who believe they are entitled to the best of everything because that's what they have been told.

That's why Yale is offering a course on humility.

But before we who are not necessarily of the current narcissistic generation start shaking our fingers in judgment, humility, or the lack of it, isn't a new problem. It's intrinsic to every one of us, although it manifests itself in different ways.

The person who refuses charity from others is just as "unhumble" as the person who believes the world owes him whatever he wants. "Worm theology" — taking pleasure in thinking of yourself as lowly and wretched — is just as unbiblical as thinking too highly of yourself.

They're both rooted in pride because they're both me-centric.

As for learning humility from a class, I'm not sure you can. For Christians, I think true humility comes when we believe ourselves to be simultaneously deeply flawed but in Christ dearly loved.

Jesus told his followers, "Blessed are the poor in spirit" (Matthew 5:3).

Blessed, happy, spiritually prosperous are those who know their true condition — and they're true worth. Nothing more and nothing less.
